Annual turnover of Ma Kankali Krishi Samuh is Rs 4 crore

Chronicle Reporter, Bhopal

Farmers have established new records in the field of vegetable production with government assistance at Vicharpur in Shahdol district and Ghunghuti in Umaria district. Tomatoes and other vegetables produced by farmers are being loaded in trucks and sent to Delhi, Bangalore and other big markets of the country thus benefitting farmers directly.

Progressive farmer of Shahdol district Pavan

Mishra began this trend from Vicharpur and Sinduri of Shahdol district.

He had started with farming of tomatoes on 10-acre land in Sinduri village and Vicharpur ten years back.

He was provided technical guidance by agriculture and horticulture department officials for advanced farming of tomato.

He was also provided with Rs 5 lakh from the bank for drip irrigation.

Due to good demand for tomatoes, he received great benefit. He later began farming of chilly, bottle gourd, cucumber, long beans, potato, garlic and onions etc. along with tomato. After acquiring benefit from farming of vegetables, he advised other farmers also in this regard to form groups.

On Pavan's advice, 8 farmers of Umaria district formed a group Ma Kankali Krishi Samuh and made a work plan for advanced farming of vegetables on about 125-acre land in Ghunghuti area.

Constant vigilance and due to the advice of agricultural scientists, farmers have set new dimensions in vegetable production in Sinduri, Vicharpur and Ghunghuti gram panchayat of Shahdol division.

The annual turnover of vegetable production of farmers of Ma Kankali KRishi Samuh is now nearly Rs 4 crores.

Tomatoes from Shahdol division is reaching prominent vegetable markets. About 200 persons of the region have got employment from the group. Other farmers of Shahdol division are also coming forward in this field.

2017: A tough year gone for BJP, more challenges ahead

Agencies, Bhopal

A violent peasants' agitation that led to the killing of six agriculturists in police firing, a horrendous gang-rape followed by a spate of similar horrors and a minister being disqualified from contesting by the Election Commission of India (ECI) while another encountering troubles in a murder case.

Add to it two by-election defeats, rising offences against women and a worsening farm crisis - all of which provided enough ammunition to the principal-opposition Congress seeking revival of its fortunes ahead of election year, 2017 was a year marked by numerous troubles for the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), which completed 14 years in power with Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan completing his 12th year as the state's head firmly in the saddle.

In order to counter the challenges caused by agrarian crisis and crime against women, the regime responded by launching the 'Bhavantar Bhugtan Yojana' and brought a rape bill that envisages to hand death penalty to child rapists.

Nonetheless, farmers and the Opposition alleged that the prices of certain commodities such as soybean and urad plunged in wake of the Bhavantar Bhugtan Yojana's launch.

Notwithstanding the challenges and eyeing a resounding fourth successive victory in 2018 assembly elections, the BJP opened an election war room with the slogan 'Abki Baar -200 Paar'(This time -200 plus seats)' in November.

With the elimination of Students' Islamic Movement of India (SIMI) activists in an encounter near Bhopal on the previous year's October 30-31 night, the BJP Government began 2017 on a high note - with the party executive meeting in Sagar in January praising the Chief Minister, the Home Minister and police for quick and appropriate action. The party swept elections in three municipal bodies in the same month.

While Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) Mohan Bhagwat visited the state twice - in February and October, Sadhvi Pragya Thakur was acquitted along with seven others by a Dewas court in the murder of RSS pracharak Sunil Joshi for the lack of evidence in February.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited the heartland state for the closing ceremony of the Narmada Seva Yatra in May. In his speech, he said that the Centre has resolved to double farmers' income by 2022 and praised Madhya Pradesh for drafting a scheme to achieve the goal.

Ironically, the state was hit by a violent farmers' protest unknown in recent times in the very next month. Farmer in western Madhya Pradesh began protest on June 1 demanding loan waiver and higher minimum support price (MSP), among other demands.

Mr Chouhan approached only the RSS-backed Bharatiya Kisan Sangh, announced MSP price measures for onion and claimed that the agitation has ended. Nonetheless, other farmers' associations decried the announcement and launched protests.

Violence spread across several towns with protesters looting and dumping vegetables, fruits and dairy products while being transported. On June 6, six peasants died in firing during a clash with police.

In order to restore "peace", the Chief Minister sat on an indefinite fast on June 10 - which ended the next day after he met several farmers' organisations and family members of a few deceased peasants. Later, Mr Chouhan announced a compensation of Rs 1 crore and a job to the next of kin of each dead.

The principal-opposition Congress tried to score political points during the agitation and dubbed Mr Chouhan's fast as a sham while Congress MP Jyotiraditya Scindia sat on a 72-hour 'satyagraha' in the state capital.

In the Assembly's Monsoon Session, Panchayat and Rural Development Minister Gopal Bhargava blamed opium smugglers for violence during the agitation.
